Nidhi Wiesner, German-born artist, has donated a painting in conjunction with The Ritz-Carlton, to help raise funds for the Shafallah centre. This painting has been created specifically for Festival Of The Senses. The art, Five Senses, is reminiscent of the old masters and their painstaking layering of their work, symbolized by gold leaf in the centre of the painting. Gold is very much a part of the fabric of society in this region, both as a store of value and as a reflection of the sun and sand. Bronze, again a measure of value, hints at the landscape at its most reduced form, stands in contrast to the abstract palette of shapes, forms and colours. The vibrancy and energy of the colours entice and stimulate all five senses.

The Shafallah Centre currently provides quality special education, intensive physical therapy, and family support services to over 200 children aged 3 to 18. The centre serves children with autism, learning disabilities and mental and physical disabilities.
